

Nomination unopposed at press time

Cllr. Christina Smith poised to become interim mayor April 24

BY LAUREEN SWEENEY

Barring unforeseen developments after press time Monday noon, April 24, it appeared that District 5 councillor Christina Smith was on her way to being acclaimed Westmount's next mayor.

Smith was the only member of council to confirm she intended to file required nomination papers for the role of interim mayor by the 4:30 pm deadline Monday.

All others told the Independent they were not going to seek the position left vacant by the official resignation April 13 of former mayor Peter Trent.

"I am very excited about this possibility," she said.

"While it is daunting to step into the role after Peter Trent, I feel fortunate to have worked so closely with him and the administration in this past mandate."

Since this remaining six-month interim term is so short, it is believed that the person filling it would be wanting to seek re-election in the November 5 general election. continued on p. 7

New owner won't tear it down

No condos set for Hillside armoury, Cllr. Martin says

BY LAUREEN SWEENEY

Contrary to some concerns that six-storey condos might rise at the site of the vacated Hillside armoury, Councillor Patrick Martin told the Independent last week he has heard from the new owner's architect that this is not in the plan.

"I'm told that the new owner wants to retain the existing building and use it as an athletic facility," Martin explained. He said

Elites bring home Dodge Cup

The Lac St. Louis Elites Extreme became the provincial champs when they won the gold medal at the Dodge Cup, beating the Canadiennes de Montréal 4-0 in the Midget B finals at the Bishops University arena in Sherbrooke. "The girls had a great tournament, scoring 11 goals and only allowing a mere two goals in four games," said parent Hillel Rosen, whose daughter captain Ariel Rosen was the leading scorer for the tournament. Seven of the team's players are Westmounters. Competitive hockey for Westmount girls is through the Lac St. Louis Elites program, which groups together several cities. See photo, p. 1.

4 contractors ordered to stop work

Public Security officials said three construction contractors and a tree pruner were stopped working on legal holidays in Westmount last week. Three had been involved in work April 17 (Easter Monday) on Clarke, Chesterfield and Academy Rd. while the tree worker was stopped April 14 (Good Friday) on Kensington.

North Stars win Senior A

The playoffs for the Westmount Senior A league saw the Kings and the North Stars face off in the final game in a best-of-two-out-of-three. The Kings won the first game (4-2) and the North Stars the second (6-5) in a shootout. In the deciding game April 13, the score was tied two-all until, with seconds remaining on the clock, the North Stars scored a third goal to become the 2017 champions of the league. or Occupancy of an Immovable (SCAOPI/PPCMOI).

The armoury is located on Hillside Lane and Hillside Ave. across from the Westmount Athletic Grounds. It was put up for sale last fall by Canada Lands Company on behalf of the federal government at a price of $2.8 million.

Dating from 1910, the brick building was vacated three years ago after longtime use by the 34 Combat Engineer Regiment (formerly called 3 Field Engineers). The reason provided to the Independent at that time was the deteriorating condition of the building. It needed major brick renovation and "a lot of work" to bring it up to fire code (see story April 1, 2004, p. 1).

Assembly building use

At that time, now retired Urban Planning director Joanne Poirier suggested that the existing building could likely be used by a group such as a badminton club if its vested rights as an assembly building were retained and it were not demolished. She cited its large gymnasium.

According to the department's current director, Tom Flies, the current zoning (R6-34-14) limits the height of new buildings to three storeys (35 feet) and requires a 10-foot setback from the street on the Hillside Ave. side. Its use is limited to residential, which includes a seniors' residence and multi-family units.

In the event the city were to allow demolition of the Category II heritage-rated armoury, it would therefore require any new structure to conform to current zoning.

This building and the adjacent condos at 11 Hillside are the only buildings in the zone.

SUPPORT SMITH, BUT WITH PROCESS RESERVATIONS

Though I had reservations about the imposed process for selection of an interim mayor, I support the election* of Councillor Christina Smith with the hope of achieving these objectives:

1. Concrete measures toward an accelerated programme of renewal and maintenance of long-neglected infrastructure: sidewalks, streets, parks, water supply, hydro and our 27 municipal buildings. The city has a huge financial deficit in this regard.
2. An end to over-taxation of home and business owners. Renters are also affected through a history of rental increases caused by high taxes. Many shops stand empty. Regular un-budgeted surpluses totalling almost $35 million over the last seven years are unacceptable, particularly given the state of our infrastructure.
3. A more service-oriented approach from Urban Planning, advising residents about renovation projects rather than blocking them with unclear and sometimes unrealistic regulations, and with undue delays for permits.
4. The Planning Advisory Committee plays an important role in preserving our architectural heritage. But it should revert to its proper legal role of advising Urban Planning and council rather than dictating.

5. Immediate steps toward a pre-feasibility study for building a public indoor pool: community support, location, size, cost, operation and ownership.
 6. Completion of a professional, transparent Southeast development study, with full consideration and respect for the concerns of those who currently live in the area. A plan must not be imposed.
 7. A scientific re-analysis of the proposed sound barrier. The barrier height necessarily must vary from the proposed 20 ft., depending on the new and varying heights and distance of the highway.
- I anticipate a busy and productive six months ahead.

DISTRICT 1 COUNCILLOR PATRICK MARTIN, AND COMMISSIONER FOR PUBLIC WORKS

 Editor's note: The election was to take place after press time, so this statement is a prediction, albeit a very informed one by a councillor with knowledge of his colleagues' intentions to run and intentions to vote.*

Local Rotarians serve dinner to Welcome Hall clients

BY MARTIN C. BARRY

While the Westmount Rotarians have made efforts in recent years to be involved in international projects, they haven't forgotten the importance of also being present locally, says Peter Starr, president of the chapter.

One of the Rotary Club of Westmount's latest local endeavours saw five members serving evening dinner on March 29 at the Welcome Hall Mission's emergency men's shelter on St. Antoine St. downtown.

Some other recent local efforts involved doing painting and renovation work at the Chez Doris women's shelter, at St. Columba House and the Nazareth House.

According to Starr, the Welcome Hall Mission reached out recently to the Rotarians to see whether they'd be interested in sponsoring and serving a dinner to the mission's clients.

On the evening that the meal was served, the menu included cream of vegetable soup, garden salad, chicken stew served on rice and fruit crumble for dessert.

"It was all delicious, with a strong accent on providing fresh and healthy food," said Starr. "Welcome Hall Mission has done a lot of innovative things to help their clients, and serving great food is important to them."

Apart from their local projects, the Westmount Rotarians are also involved in international projects, Starr said. Earlier this year, according to Starr, they began providing support for a project in Kenya to help provide solar water purifiers that can produce two gallons of water per day.

Kathryn Stephens, Welcome Hall Mission's senior manager for development and public relations, said they greatly appreciated the Rotarians' support.

"Each night, our emergency shelter serves hot, nutritious meals to up to 250 homeless Montrealers," she said. While noting that the Rotarians seemed to appreciate the experience, she added that Welcome Hall Mission also "appreciated their involvement."

Correction

As the photo caption correctly stated in the issue of April 18 (p. 5), Peter Trent returned to office in 2009 after the demergers, not in 2013, as mentioned in the story on the same page "Trent hands back the chain for his successor April 24."

Christina Smith told the Independent April 23 that in planning to file her mayoralty nomination papers the next day she believes her councillor role as commissioner of Administration “will help me in this interim role as mayor.”

It not only gave her the opportunity to work with the different city departments, she explained, but to be part of the budget process.

“We have much to do in the last six months of this mandate. We are committed to invest in infrastructure, parks and green spaces and promote active transportation. District 5 [which she represented] is one where the commercial area of Victoria village meets the residential neighbourhood, which has given me the opportunity to work with the commercial and retail sectors as well as residents.

“I have always felt at council that we achieve more when we work as a team to find the best outcome for residents. I am very committed to this community; it is where I am raising my family, and I hope to build on what we have achieved in the first three years of this mandate.”

If chosen as interim mayor, she added, “I will work hard with council and the administration to ensure the citizens have the services that make this a wonderful city to live in.”

Christina Smith April 3.

Smith, a resident of Grosvenor Ave., was elected to city council in 2013 on concerns for safety around school zones. She had interrupted a 13-year career as a government, communications and public affairs professional to raise a young family and carry out community service.

She quickly became immersed in municipal politics through the pressures of construction, traffic and other issues faced by her Victoria village constituency and through her role as council’s commissioner of Administration.

While councillors Patrick Martin and Theodora Samiotis had been expected to seek the interim position, it appeared that both had instead decided to support Smith.

“A lot of people approached me, and I haven’t excluded a decision to run for mayor in November,” Samiotis explained. “My focus in the next few months is to bring forward a vision for the southeast since we’re so close.”

Martin said he was supporting Smith but hoped she would address a list of his concerns. (See Letters, p. 6.)

So, while the new mayor leaves the position as councillor, what happens to that person’s role as a district representative?

“That council seat would remain vacant for the remainder of the term,” city clerk Martin St-Jean explained. A by-election for a council seat would take place only in the event a vacancy occurred before the 12-month period prior to a general election.

In the case of the mayoralty, however, if the vacancy occurs within the 12 months, the council has the option of holding a by-election or electing one of its members through a process of “cooptation.”

Westmount Square denies blocking evening access to Metro

BY MARTIN C. BARRY

In spite of a complaint made by a long-time patron, a Westmount Square official denies mall management is restricting access to the Metro during evening hours, but admits they don't tolerate loitering when the stores are closed.

A Greene Ave. resident who works near Westmount Square and has been a patron of the mall for the past 25 years told the Independent that mall management was no longer allowing access to Westmount Square during the evening for persons wishing to walk through to the Atwater Metro station through the pedestrian tunnel.

"They don't let us go through Westmount Square after a certain hour. They lock all the doors so you can't get in, you can't get out," he said, while asking that his identity not be published.

In addition, he maintained that one recent evening around 7 pm as he was sitting in the centre court at Westmount Square, security personnel told him he would have to "move on" as the stores were shut at that hour and that area of the mall was closed.

Lori Johnson, property manager for Westmount Square, acknowledged that Westmount Square's Greene Ave. entrance, seen here April 20, is locked after the stores close, although Metro passengers can use the Wood Ave. door, according to mall management.

mall management locks the Greene Ave. doors when the stores have closed. But she denied that access to the Metro is being restricted.

"When the stores are closed then the Greene Ave doors are closed, but there's still access through the Wood Ave. side for anyone who wants to go to the Metro," she said.

Johnson confirmed that Westmount Square doesn't allow visitors to use the centre court area after store closing hours.

"If the stores are closed, there shouldn't be anyone in the mall sitting around," she said. "We don't allow any loitering, just as they don't at Alexis Nihon Plaza."

The building is accessible at all times to residential tenants via intercom.

Then & Now: Garden Point to Vimy Park

Westmount Historical Association

CAROLINE BRESLAW

Garden Point c. 1900.

Photos courtesy of Westmount Historical Association

The recently named Vimy Park, the triangular green space to the east of Westmount city hall, was originally part of the once vast Decarie farm, granted to the family by the Sulpicians. It was overlooked by a huge elm tree and was said to be a meeting place for Amerindians.

In the 1850s, when the Grey Nuns were planning to build their motherhouse in Westmount, they acquired this segment. The motherhouse never materialized, and the land continued to be cultivated by various owners. A photo from c. 1900 shows it being ploughed.

The irregular point shape was created in 1893 when Sherbrooke St. was extended west to Côte St. Antoine Rd. This lot was purchased by the city in 1911 from a Judge Ouimet and was given the name Garden Point.

The cornerstone for a war memorial, to commemorate soldiers from Westmount who had died during World War I, was laid in 1920. In 1922, Westmount city hall was built facing it to the west, and the cenotaph was unveiled. Designed by the prominent sculptor George Hill, it features the bronze figures of a soldier and a guardian angel, with marble reliefs of women in wartime below.

In 1948, local architect Percy Erskine Nobbs designed an elevated platform, added granite tablets with the names of Westmount's fallen military personnel from the World War II, and planned landscaping.

At the April 3, 2017 meeting of Westmount city council, Garden Point was re-named Vimy Park, in honour of Canada's World War I victory at Vimy Ridge. The grassy expanse of Vimy Park will be landscaped to provide a place for quiet contemplation.

Caroline Breslaw is president of the Westmount Historical Association.

City staff exhibition on at Gallery

BY HEATHER BLACK

On April 20, curator Victoria LeBlanc was busy setting up the Exhibition of Works by the City of Westmount Employees at the Gallery at Victoria Hall. Held every few years, the 2017 exhibition will feature, paintings, drawings, photography and sculpture from eight participants until May 18.

For Ron Harris with Community Events, this is the third opportunity to exhibit his photographs. Said LeBlanc, “This is such a creative community with so many talented individuals.”

She has been the gallery’s curator since 1999 and said she is pleased to maintain her link with the Westmount community. An artist herself, she found: “It was time for me to indulge my own creativity” and now paints daily.

Although LeBlanc stepped down as director of the Visual Art Centre in December, she will return to teach a course at the school in September.

New Visual Arts head Reid pleased with student exhibition

BY HEATHER BLACK

The Visual Arts Centre’s new director, Natasha Reid, was on hand to great visitors to the art school’s recent Annual Student Exhibition 2017.

The exhibition, which included student drawings, watercolours and paintings, as well as sculpture, ran from March 31 to April 15. For Reid, who became head in January, “This year’s exhibition is representative of the passion, sophistication and creativity that is nurtured at the centre.”

She first taught at the school in 2012-13 and described the centre as “a dynamic community that I am thrilled to return to.”

Enrollment for spring workshops and the youth summer program is currently taking place at the Victoria Ave.-based centre.

On the Lighter Side

Remember the days when...

Humour

INGRID KOVITCH-DANNENBAUM

“Hey!” screeched one of the kids, “This watermelon has SEEDS!”

“You know,” I began, “In my day, all watermelons had seeds.”

Eyes widened. I went on, “After all, what do you plant to grow a seedless watermelon?”

There was global befuddlement as four children contemplated the fate of their beloved oversized fruit mule.

At the same moment, I began to ponder, with considerable horror the notion that none of our progeny had ever gloried in the immeasurable satisfaction of pinging a sibling with a well-aimed “phtoo!”

And with that wistful thought, I surrendered to the inexorable pull, the seductive lure, of ... nostalgia.

Was it possible that our kids had never tasted the delicious deviousness of listening in – I mean, inadvertently catching snippets of – conversations on “land lines”? Worse, that they had never known a world prior to the invention of the term?

Never had their gum purchases been driven by the relentless life-defining mission of generating quarters in order to feed pay phones. They knew nothing about collect calls. Reversing charges. Having to remember phone numbers!

Mixing tapes

No hours were consumed waiting, with finger poised over the record button of a tape deck, for a coveted song to finally play on the radio. No “mix tapes” were ever made for special events, for running or as gifts for friends.

These moppets knew not from paper maps; crucial areas rubbed off at the folds. Nor road atlases. Nor getting lost.

They had never relished the titillating excitement of waiting for film to be developed. The devastation of an overexposed roll. Flash cubes.

None had ever passed notes – actual paper notes – in class!

When I was a kid, my parents used to call us for supper with a wonderful, sonorous brass bell. These days our nefarious go-to strategy to guarantee that teens will surface when summoned is to unplug the modem. Sure enough, the panicked urchins spring up instantly; much like alarmed prairie dogs or like narwhales with their blow holes corked.

Unplugged and on fire

Luckily, as enthusiastic campers, our children were always able to embrace – for brief periods, at least – a life unplugged. Although pretty much everything about the senseless-suffering-in-the-open-air appealed to them, they were particularly enamoured with all things campfire-related.

From the moment they could walk, my husband began instructing them in Optimal Pyre Construction. This included sharing his nifty technique of fanning the flames using a (usually clean) plastic camping plate, and a very technically precise series of wrist flicks.

No matter how exuberant the flames, the kids revelled in flicking, flapping, swishing and waving, using any and all plates that were not already laden with camping mush. More, I suspected, in an effort to drive smoke into siblings’ eyes than to bolster the blaze.

So, many years ago, when a friend gave us a lovely, antique bellows for our cottage, 5-year-old Gabby eyed the odd contraption with great interest.

“What’s that?” he asked.

“It’s called a bellows,” I answered. “It’s an old-fashioned gizmo that blows oxygen on the fire and feeds the flames.”

“Come and see,” I continued. I held his hand in front of the nozzle end and squeezed. “Can you feel that?”

“Mmmmmm...” he hummed appreciatively. “I guess they didn’t have plates back then.”

Batshaw Children Needing Homes Meet toddler siblings

A foster home is being sought for an aboriginal sibling duo between the ages of two and three years old.

The children are presently in an emergency foster home and are in need of a permanent home, where they must stay together. The siblings are coming from an unstructured home life, i.e. lack of routine, stimulation and medical neglect. Developmentally, they are functioning below their age level, lagging behind in the area of speech. They are awaiting assessment for speech and language development.

However, since coming into foster care with nurturing, structure and consistency, they have made significant gains in that their health status and nutrition have improved, and they are more active and are adjusting to rules and daily routine.

Caring for Matthew and Morris will be challenging as they have medical issues that will require follow-ups. They have shown resiliency and have responded well to medical interventions.

The siblings have developed into smiling interactive toddlers – giggling, babbling and initiating conversations with their parents and peers. They will require foster parents who are outgoing and loving.

The ideal family for Matthew and Morris would be an aboriginal family that can make the commitment for as long as they need.

For more information about these siblings, please contact Batshaw Youth and Family Centres at 514.932.7161, extension 1139.

Contractors caught blowing leaves onto street

A landscaping company was issued a ticket for $271 when caught blowing leaves onto the street at St. Catherine and Metcalfe on April 17, Public Security officials said. Its three gardeners were observed using leaf blowers at 4:45 pm and were about to leave when the patrollers intervened and informed them of three infractions: using a blower on a legal holiday (Easter Monday), leaving the leaves in the street and failing to have a legal permit. They were described as cooperative, had no prior warnings and were ticketed with the one offence.

'Where have all the flowers gone?' The story of the Hillside armoury

Real Estate

ANDY DODGE

When Notre Dame de Grâce was incorporated as a town back in 1874, the small plot of land was a "floral nursery" owned by John Smith Murray, who lived on Dorchester St. and had a retail outlet at 822 Dorchester, corner University St. He had purchased the land from three plumbers, Richard Patton, David Glen and William Hughes, in 1872. By 1887, he had moved to Greene Ave. in the growing village of Côte St. Antoine but kept up the nursery, which was off "Sissons Lane," which eventually became St. Catherine St.

Lovell's Directory first shows the existence of Hillside Ave. in 1894, reporting that it stretched from Hallowell St. to Abbott Ave., where the local railroad station had been built to welcome the new CPR right-of-way. Two years later, the easternmost section of Hillside became the huge stadium and playing grounds of the Montreal Amateur Athletic Association (MAAA). Murray, it appears, kept his nursery operating on the west side of the MAAA grounds despite the fact that Evans Bros. Coal and Wood appeared across the street, at 10 Hillside, backing onto the railway tracks.

The railway attracted other industrial enterprises, as well, including John Stewart, a builder who set himself up at 153 Hillside, corner Metcalfe Ave. Stewart's wife, Catherine Fraser Coupland, finally purchased the nursery from Murray in 1906, paying $4,819.50 or about 30 cents per square foot. She turned it over three years later to the newly-formed Mount Royal Stables Ltd., a riding instruction organization, which set about building a huge brick structure, which boarded horses in the basement.

Apparently Stewart was not the actual builder of the Mount Royal Stables (it was designed, according to some accounts, by R. Montgomery Roddon and built by the Roebing Construction Co. of New York), but Coupland more than doubled her money by selling the land to the organization for $10,500.

Some have suggested the building cost upwards of $100,000 to build, with huge arched windows offering light to a central enclosed courtyard, stables for 100 horses and four storeys of offices and rooms on the south end. One riding enthusiast who blogs under the codename "sidesaddlegirl" reprinted the promotional article in the Montreal Standard of June 25, 1910 and commented, "It must have been an impressive site in it's [sic] day with all the grooms in attendance and all the gleaming saddles in the tack room!"

No doubt one of the major advantages was the proximity to the MAAA grounds, which included a huge showing area and circular track so members could ride outdoors when the weather allowed.

With automobiles rapidly replacing horses as the main mode of transportation, in 1919 the building was sold to Richard Weir Grant, an

The announced sale in early March of the Hillside armoury, 1-3 Hillside Ave. corner Hillside Lane, may bring a new use to a property, which started out as a flower garden and later was home for a variety of different users, from horses to automobiles to soldiers.

chanic,” for $65,000; he quickly transferred it to his company, Grant Garage Ltd., but by 1921 it was sold to His Majesty The King and the military use of the building was established, according to Lovell's, simply as “military stores.”

Over the years the name of the occupant in Lovell's changed from “military stores” to “ordnance stores depot” to “Royal Canadian ordnance depot.” By 1945, at the end of World War II, it sported the name “Royal Canadian Electrical and Mechanical Engineering Depot” and apparently the 3 Field Engineer Regiment moved in, in about 1949, followed a few years later by the 11 Signal Regiment.

The engineers had a long association with the city, often participating in the city of Westmount’s Family Day celebrations by building bridges and zip lines across the Westmount Park pond, as they still do despite their departure from the armoury, and participating in Remembrance Day celebrations. In 1981, one of their own, Mayor Donald MacCallum, who was by then honorary colonel of the regiment, offered them the “freedom of the city,” which allowed the troop to march “with bayonets mounted” in Westmount.

Mayor Michael Tucker (1965-68) had been commanding officer of the regiment back in the 1940s before they moved to Hillside. And in 1963, one of their bomb disposal experts, Walter Leja, successfully dismantled two bombs in Westmount mailboxes, planted by the Front de Libération du Québec before being seriously injured by a third bomb at the corner of Lansdowne and Westmount avenues.

Some 10 years ago, the regiment began to ponder the future of the site and approached then Mayor Karin Marks about the possibility of turning it over to the city, according to city councillor Patrick Martin, but the question was left in abeyance until early this year, when again the regiment offered it to the city (see story March 7, p. 1). Though Martin said he favoured making the building into an indoor swimming pool and recreation centre, he was voted down by other members of city council who felt the cost of operating such a centre would be too high to warrant the cost of conversion.

The building still contains the huge central area, which rises two floors with windows overlooking it, which was used to parade horses 100 years ago.

Grosvenor reconstruction contract to be awarded $1.5M on May 1

LAUREEN SWEENEY

A contractor who has never worked on road reconstruction in Westmount is expected to be awarded a $1.5-million contract May 1 for the challenging Grosvenor Ave. redo, according to Councillor Patrick Martin, Public Works commissioner. It involves the entire block from de Maison-neuve to Sherbrooke.

The quote of CMS General Contractors was the lowest conforming bid of four and was found to meet the city's specifications, Martin said last week.

The CMS quote for $1.468 million (tax credits included) was less than expected, he explained. "While this contractor has never worked on our roads, they have a good reputation on the island."

Because of the complexity of the project, he expected the contractor would want to start work as soon as possible to be able to complete it on time – all within this year.

The project, as had been outlined by Councillor Christina Smith, involves new water mains, electrical conduits, street lights, sidewalks, concrete road base and asphalt surfacing. The long, narrow street has no lanes or access side streets (see story April 11, p. 1).

Chocolate Lab goes wandering

A chocolate-coloured Labrador was found running loose near the Summit lookout April 16, Public Security officials said. The dog is well known to officers, who leashed it and returned it to the owner, who lives in the area. The resident was issued two $77 tickets: one for the dog being off leash and the other for failing to obtain a valid permit. He was reported to have been warned and ticketed "on numerous occasions" for the same by-law offences.

ON THE SHELVES

Among new arrivals at the Westmount Public Library singled out by staff are:

Magazines

“Love as practice” by Tara Brach in Mindful, April 2017, p. 66-67. The author and her husband have developed a regular meditation practice for keeping the lines of communication open and maintaining a deep and loving connection.

“Unlocking the vault” by Carlin Flora in Psychology Today, March/April 2017. Many people harbor lifelong secrets too painful to confront, let alone disclose. But examining the context in which such secrets develop is key to vanquishing their power.

“Le sexe féminin, terra incognita?” in Québec science, March 2017, p. 13-31. Un dossier spécial qui s'intéresse à la santé des femmes en plusieurs chapitres.

E-audio (from Overdrive)

Lincoln in the Bardo by George Saunders – Read by 166 actors and musicians, as well as a number of Saunders' family and friends, including Nick Offerman, David Sedaris and George Saunders, this mesmerizing historical novel is also a moving ghost story as it traces a night of solitary mourning and reflection as experienced by the 16th president after the death of his 11-year-old son at the dawn of the Civil War.

Norse Mythology by Neil Gaiman – Read by Gaiman himself, it's a retelling of the three main Norse mythological figures: Odin, the highest and oldest of the gods; his son, Thor, who makes up in brawn what he lacks in brains; and Loki, offspring of giants and a wily trickster.

Livres numériques

Romain Gary s'en va-t-en guerre by Laurent Seksik – Before inventing Émile Ajar, a person who never existed and under whose name Romain Gary wrote and even won the Prix Goncourt, Gary invented himself a father. Building his own legend, the author inferred that this imaginary father was Ivan Mosjoukine, the most famous Russian actor of his time. It turns out reality had nothing to do with this fairy tale. This book retraces 24 hours in the life of the young Romain, a day which turns his life around.

La vie secrète des arbres: découvertes d'un monde caché by Peter Wohlleben – Forester and author Peter Wohlleben makes the case that, yes, the forest is a social network. He draws on groundbreaking scientific discoveries to describe how trees are like human families: tree parents live together with their children, communicate with them, support them as they grow, share nutrients with those who are sick or struggling, and even warn each other of impending dangers.

Adult books – Refugees in fact and fiction

Exit West by Moshin Hamid – The internationally best-selling author of The Reluctant Fundamentalist presents the story of two young lovers whose furtive affair is shaped by local unrest on the eve of a civil war that erupts in a cataclysmic bombing attack, forcing them to abandon their previous home and lives.

The New Odyssey: The Story of the Twenty-First-Century Refugee Crisis by Patrick Kingsley – Europe is facing a wave of migration unmatched since the end of World War II. Throughout 2015, Kingsley traveled to 17 countries along the migrant trail, meeting hundreds of refugees making epic odysseys across deserts, seas and mountains to reach the holy grail of Europe. This is Kingsley's unparalleled account of who these voyagers are. It's about why they keep coming, and how they do it.

Adult French: French political figures

Dans la tête de Marine Le Pen by Michel Eltchaninoff – On the eve of the 2017 presidential elections, this essay examines the main elements of the ideology carried by the Front National's leader.

Jacques & Jacqueline: un homme et une femme face à la raison d'État by Laureline Dupont and Pauline de Saint-Rémy. – Jacqueline Chabridon was prime minister's Jacques Chirac's mistress and was interviewed for this book.

DVDs: The award for best actor goes to...

Chocolat directed by Roschdy Zem – Omar Sy won a Globes de cristal award for his portrayal of the first black artist of the French stage, Rafael (stage name: Chocolat). His performances as a clown and actor during the belle époque took him from obscurity to great popular success, but celebrity, easy money, gambling and discrimination eventually took their toll on his career.

Manchester by the Sea directed by Kenneth Lonergan – After the death of his older brother Joe, Lee Chandler (played by Casey Affleck, who won an Oscar for his performance) is shocked that Joe has made him sole guardian of his teenage nephew Patrick. Taking a leave from his job as a janitor in Boston, Lee reluctantly returns to Manchester-by-the-Sea, the Massachusetts fishing village where his working-class family has lived for generations.

Animal stories for children

Moo Dog by David Milgrim – Moo Dog and Moo Bird are different from the other animals. They laugh at Dog when he moos instead of barks, but Dog and Bird show the others that being different can be fun.

Those Pesky Rabbits by Ciara Flood – Bear lives on his own in the middle of nowhere, and that's just the way he likes it. But when a family of rabbits builds its house right next to his, he isn't pleased. They keep knocking on his door and asking for things! Will Bear ever learn to like his pesky new neighbours?

Book Club in a Bag

The Break by Katherena Vermette – When a Métis woman sees a possible crime she telephones the police. Told from the perspectives of various people connected to this violence in a Métis community, we hear their stories leading up to that fateful night.

Book of Westmount photos launched

Mashaal publishes poetry book

BY VERONICA REDGRAVE

Westmounter Richard Mashaal values friendship so much he opened a new company. He created the publishing house Thirty Torches to launch No Turning Back, a poetry book by Michael Katz, a friend of Mashaal's years ago when they both attended LCC.

Today, Katz, now a lawyer, lives in LA. "I wrote my first book of poetry to celebrate Montreal, and for my son Samuel, who is 12, so he knows my roots."

That friendship supports the publication is also evident in the book's foreword. It is written by A.O. Scott, literary reviewer for the New York Review of Books, and also an old friend of Katz from when they studied at Harvard.

"I love the references to the Laurentians," said Mashaal. "I re-lived times past: the bittersweet poignancy of nostalgia. As the title implies, there is, indeed, no turning back."

Some of the verses are written in prose, others rhyme. The poems are illustrated with photographs, some from family albums, as well as some taken by Athena Arnell. The book is available at the Museum of Jewish Montreal until the end of June.

Mystery alarm traced to garbage

A call April 15 for an alarm heard ringing on Aberdeen triggered a search for the source by public safety officers, Public Security officials said. It was finally tracked down to a dumpster outside a house at 68 Forden. Inside was a smoke detector that had been discarded along with other debris. The owner of the house had been ordered by Quebec Superior Court to clean it up as required by the city (see story September 6, p. 9).

Although everyone complains during frigid winter weeks, Montrealers really know how to enjoy winter. The 20th edition of the annual Tuques Bleues celebration, held on Mount Royal February 16 to benefit Les amis de la montagne, was another sold-out success.

Presented again by Manulife, the crisp clear night event attracted 400 snowshoers, 75 runners and a multitude of cheering fans. Inspired by the treks of the 19th-century founded Montreal Snowshoe Club, the fun outdoor event combined an athletic climb up the mountain with fine food, music and entertainment.

Guests arrived warmly muffled as were the mounted police on their magnificent Black Beauty horses, admired for their icicle-lashed but lovely attentive eyes.
